PRICE FIVE CENTS

ENTOMBED MINE WORKERS SPENT TIME IN PRAYER

Leader of 21 Men Who Were Saved Tells of Their Ordeal

Fairmont, W. Va., Jan. 16.—(AP)—R. M. Lambie, chief of the West Virginia department of mines led a corps of inspectors into Jamison mine number 8 today to investigate the explosion of Thursday night. Lambie said the investigation would center near the seventh right heading where the blast occurred and near where 19 miners were killed. He expected that the inquiry would be concluded late today.

Fairmont, W. Va., Jan. 16.—(AP)—When things looked darkest for the 21 men entombed in an air lock following an explosion in the Jamison coal & coke Co., mine near here, their upmost thought was of God and a greater portion of the 18 hours they spent in their underground prison was devoted to discussion of the bible and in prayer. This was revealed by John H. McNeill, sixty year old compressor engineer, who, with Lee Petty, a foreman, supervised the construction of the baled hay barricade to protect the little band from the mine gases which were fatal to 19 of their fellow workmen.

"Every man was a perfect Christian during the long ordeal," McNeill said. He explained that although some of the miners could hardly understand what the others said, because of the varied nationalities represented, all seemed to comprehend the situation and unite when appeals were made for divine guidance and aid.

Originally there were 23 in the group rescued, but two of them, both negroes and one a minister, perished in an attempted dash for the mine shaft soon after the men had taken refuge in the air lock. Before the minister left them, McNeill said, he led in prayer. Afterward McNeill served as leader.

None of the 21 men appeared to have suffered greatly from his experience underground.

Plans for the funerals of the 19 victims were being made by relatives today. Whether a combined service will be held or rites conducted for each individual has not been decided.

UNION MINERS GET REPORT OF PAY COMMITTEE

Says Whole Blame for Failure of Parley is on Operators

Hazleton, Pa., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Local unions throughout the Anthracite region today received the report of the miners' sub scale committee which was in conference with the hard coal operators. In New York in the futile attempt to draw up a new wage contract. It stated that the operators in the New York conference "did not" change their attitude which they assumed on July 9 at Atlantic City and they persistently insisted that no settlement that did not provide for a continuous and permanent arbitration of wages and conditions would be considered.

The refusal of the operators to join in a petition to congress to pass legislation to regulate the industry gave evidence "that their only desire for arbitration is to reduce the wages of the miners and permit their profits and prices to be regulated by themselves."

"At this writing," the report says, "negotiations are off despite every effort of your negotiating committee to remain in session in their desire to bring about an honorable settlement. From now on we can expect that the anthracite operators will continue in their propaganda intended to demoralize our forces and create distrust and dissension among our membership."

Could It Be Possible that Ganna Shows Temper? New York, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Just before the gang plank was removed today, Harold P. McCormick, Chicago millionaire had his baggage taken from the steamship Paris and his wife Mme Ganna Walska departed without him. She said she was going to Paris to sing in "Madame Butterfly."

Neither Mr. McCormick nor his wife gave any explanation of his sudden decision not to make the trip. Mr. McCormick appeared perturbed.

Children Fear Investment Broker Has Taken Own Life Chicago, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Urged by the children of Clark Van Hausen, Elgin investment broker, police are continuing their search here for him. Van Hausen disappeared several days ago and his relatives said that as he has been dependent for some time they feared for his welfare. That he was or had been in Chicago was revealed by his pass book and a quick claim deed to his property mailed to the family.

Suspected Illinois Bank Robber to Be Extradited Jefferson City, Mo., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Requisition for return to Quincy, Illinois, of George Forman wanted in connection with the $2,500 Bank of Fowler robbery last May 14, was today granted by Governor Baker. Forman, who is under arrest at Kansas City, has resisted removal.

POLO WOMAN IS SUMMONED AFTER A LONG SICKNESS

Mrs. Laura Rizner Died Just Two Months After Husband

(Telegraph Special Service) Polo, Ill., Jan. 16.—Mrs. Laura Rizner, widow of the late William Rizner who passed away just two months ago yesterday, died at her home here at 4:30 o'clock Friday afternoon, death resulting from cancer, with which she had suffered for two years. Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home and at 2:30 o'clock at the Methodist Episcopal church. Rev. Harry H. Brown, the pastor, officiating, assisted by Elder Henry Trump. Burial will be made at Fairmount.

Laura Binkley was born in Middlebury, Penn., April 22, 1850 and was married to William Rizner in the east 52 years ago, the couple coming to Polo about half a century ago. She is survived by one son, William E. Rizner; a brother, D. I. Binkley of Pennsylvania, and a sister, Mrs. Helen Weaver of Hagerstown, Md.

DIXON MEMBERS OF "SERPENTS" GO TO FREEPORT

Will Attend Meeting in That City Tomorrow Afternoon

The Military Order of the Serpent Boletino, an auxiliary of the United Spanish War Veterans of Dixon, Rockford, Freeport and Savanna camps, will meet in the G. A. R. hall in Freeport tomorrow, the call sent out from Cascoel Lair, No. 7, this city, being as follows:

To all faithful followers of Khatheh (Greetings):

The Great Snake has aroused from his long slumber and feels the pangs of hunger. We beseech the American who gets in his path.

On the afternoon of the 17th day of the first moon of the new year, at the G. A. R. hall at 2 o'clock, in the sub. barrio of Freeport, all High Priests and Slave Drivers of the Lair will assemble to elect a Gu Gu and other officers for the year. Also to resist an attack from a band of Americans who will shortly be on their way to a better life.

All roads leading to this football center are concrete; enough fat puppies have been placed where it is warm to ripen to satisfy even the Great Serpent himself. Dipped in the juice of the grape or rye. What more could be asked? Aye, even in this land of hard drinking Coco Cola fiends.

Put the fruit of the tall corn into your radiators and the fuel oil into the crank case and all may meet again and exercise great care as the way to the snare of the green jungle is beset with traps of the Four Americans, known as Speed Cops.

Infection in John Praetz' Arm Proves to be Very Serious

John Praetz, well known cattle buyer of this city, was taken to the Dixon public hospital this morning to undergo an operation. Mr. Praetz while looking over a herd of cattle before Christmas, slipped and fell in a corn field, a jagged corn stalk penetrating into his right forearm. Infection developed and he has suffered intense pain. A sliver of corn stalk about five inches in length imbedded itself deep in the flesh where it remained for some time before being found. It was stated today at the hospital that an effort is being made to prevent the amputation of a part of the arm.

Start Proceedings to Get Catalina Out of Co. Jail

Attorney H. A. Brooks, representing Frank Catalina, late yesterday afternoon instituted proceedings in the circuit court before Judge Harry Edwards to secure the liberation of his client, who is a prisoner in the county jail. The petition filed classed Catalina as a pauper and Judge Edwards set the matter down for hearing in the circuit court next Friday.

Will Give Exhibition of Charleston at A. L. Fair

Crawford Coleman and Miss Sibyl Bradshaw, king and queen of the new Charleston dance, will give an exhibition of the latest thing in the art of torsiophore this evening at 9 o'clock at the Downing hall. The promoters of the Legion football team bazaar which concludes this evening, have secured the services of the two artists for this evening and a record crowd is expected.

Polo Youth Paroled from County Jail by Co. Judge

Robert Clewell, of Polo, who has served about five months in the county jail, was granted his liberty by Judge William L. Leech in the county court yesterday afternoon and placed on parole for a period of one year. Clewell while under parole from the Lee county court, was arrested here for being intoxicated and was sent back to jail for the violation.

Mayor Seeks Elevation

Herrin, Ill., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Mayor Marshall D. McCormack of Herrin today opened his campaign for the democratic nomination for state senator from the fifth district.

DEMOCRATS BACK COOLIDGE IN HIS STRIKE ATTITUDE

Resolution Introduced to Enable Him to Operate Mines

Washington, Jan. 16.—(AP)—A resolution proposing that President Coolidge seize and control the anthracite mines for the duration of the strike, was introduced today by Senator Copeland, democrat, New York, after action on his proposal that the President merely be requested to act had been blocked by opposition from both sides of the chamber.

The President was assailed and defended today in the senate because of his attitude toward the anthracite suspension.

Senator Copeland said he felt confident that President Coolidge could bring relief in the present situation.

Senator Reed commended the President for the position he has taken, saying that he was inclined to the belief that if there never had been a "big stick," the country probably would be better off.

"The President of the United States has no more right to go outside of the law than any other citizen," he said.

Senator Robinson committed himself "here and now" to support of a constitutional amendment that would prohibit a combination of operators and miners having the effect of "freezing the public."

"If the President wanted to act he could induce the operators and miners to reach an agreement," Senator Robinson said, "and he would not have to use the 'big stick.'"

Say Americans Dig Own Graves With Their Teeth

Chicago, Jan. 16.—(AP)—The golden age of medicine means nothing in extension of life to those in the forties, and Americans continue to dig their graves with their teeth at an increasing rate.

Such were the conclusions expressed by members of the executive committee of the American Institute of Homeopathy, in session here today.

Dr. Roy Upham of New York, president of the International Association of Homeopathic doctors said: "The Europeans with their two hour lunch periods are outliving us. Thirty minutes or an hour is not sufficient for eating a meal. We delude ourselves into thinking we are living in the best age but we dash to a soda fountain, gobble up a sandwich, wash it down with a drink and rush back to business and conferences."

"At night we rush home under crowded conditions. Not enough exercise and hurried and overeating are causing increased heart and kidney diseases."

Austrian Government's Financial Plan Succeeds

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Jan. 16.—(AP)—The plan to place Austria's finances on a sound basis, the most remarkable experiment of the kind of the post-war epoch, now is entering on its last phase, declared Dr. Zimmermann, the League of Nations financial high commissioner in Austria, during a lecture here today.

Since the first of January, Dr. Zimmermann declared, control over the revenues of the state had been decreased and would finally be discontinued in June. The plan had fully succeeded.

Agree on Basis of Dry Law Enforcement in Penna.

Washington, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Establishment of a thorough basis of cooperation in enforcement of prohibition in Pennsylvania, was announced at the treasury today, after a conference between Gov. Pinchot, Secretary Mellon and Assistant Secretary Andrews.

Would Appropriate Big Sum to Buy, Sell Wheat

Washington, Jan. 16.—(AP)—A bill to appropriate $100,000,000 for the government to buy wheat, store it in bonded elevators and sell it to stabilize prices for the farmer, was introduced in the house today by Representative Little, republican of Kansas.

Local Ski Enthusiasts Will Make Trip to Cary

Several automobile parties were planned for Sunday to make the trip from Dixon to Cary, Ill., to witness the annual ski meet. Dixon ski enthusiasts, who have had no opportunity to enjoy the sport thus far this winter, have attended the meets at Cary for years.

Mine Employee Killed Between Wall and Car

Harrisburg, Ill., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Luther Gibbons, 40, timberman in Ozark No. 12 mine, was instantly killed late yesterday when caught between a rib of coal and a car.

THIEVES TAKE TROLLEY WIRE

Joliet, Ill., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Thieves last night stole 800 feet of trolley wire from the Second Avenue branch of the Chicago & Joliet Electric Railway, tying up service in that district early this morning.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANT DEAD

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Daniel C. Nugent, 70, former president of E. Nugent & Bros., one of St. Louis' largest department stores, died today of heart disease.

Now the Leviathan of the Air!

Mammoth Dirigible to Carry 100 Across Atlantic in Two Days in Making

BY FRANK COCHRAN
NEA Service Writer

Akron—A superdirigible, a giant air liner to cross the Atlantic ocean in two days is in the making.

It is to be the world's largest lighter-than-air craft, with nearly three times the gas capacity of the Los Angeles and Shenandoah and 200 feet longer.

Business men can walk into a cabin of this mammoth "bird" on Saturday, shoot swiftly to London, spend four days in England's capital and be back home on the following Monday.

Eight days for a trip to Europe and back home!

The plans are nearly complete for the great ship and construction is soon to begin. It will be Akron's 1926 gift to the world of speedy transportation.

The craft will be known as the Goodyear-Zeppelin-1. It will be built in the Goodyear factories, and the plans of the designers call for:

A ship 850 feet in length, with a gas capacity of 6,500,000 cubic feet.

For 100 Passengers

A carrying capacity of 100 passengers, baggage, food, fuel supply, supplies for the crew and auxiliary apparatus for flying 8000 mile at the rate of 75 miles an hour.

Eight Liberty motors, all with the exception of the stern motors to be built inside the hull and all to have radiators that will not freeze in the highest altitudes.

Propellers geared out from the side of the ship to grip a free flow of air. Steps and walks, corridors and runways, instead of catwalks and narrow girders. Thus the crew will be able to visit every part of the craft, examine every foot of gas cell, repair leakages, test valves and controls.

The ship is designed with an added knowledge of storm conditions. According to its designers it will be able to weather the most severe storms.

Beryllium, an aluminum alloy, the most recent metal developed for aircraft construction, will be used for the frame-work throughout, assuring lightness as well as unusual strength and durability.

The plans are to inflate the great craft with helium, the non-inflammable gas.

The sleeping quarters on the giant new blimp will be Pullman style, seats by day and beds by night. Dining and sleeping quarters will be off two main corridors running the entire length of the ship, like the corridors through the passenger section of an ocean liner.

WINTER BLASTS PREVENTED ANY LONG RECEPTION

Chicago, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Zero weather has paid another visit to the radio fan and others. And along with its coming went good distance reception, just as was the case in the winter's first heavy fuel eating period.

As usual there was a great gathering of distance hunters of Chicago's last open Monday night, but outside of the fact that certain stations could be picked up with fair results, there was no great display of long lists of stations received. Of course, there's always some transmitters that can be logged no matter what the air conditions and these were coming in at times with the usual kick.

Strolling about the country while sitting at his fireside, the fan could sojourn in the east to his heart's content for most of the evening. But when he turned his attention to the west he met rebuff. Bitter cold blasts from this direction seemed to have the same effect on radio waves that they do upon shivering humanity. They don't go out nights.

Early in the evening, eastern transmitters seemed to have regained their old time punch, but as the night wore on these signals began wearing away, giving one the impression that they were becoming tired of resisting winter's angry winds. However, the high powered station seemed to have better luck in getting across, although even they were not doing their best.

All in all it was what one listener termed as erratic reception.

AGRICULTURAL PROGRAMS

Washington, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Radio agricultural programs soon are to be broadcast by the Department of Agriculture through leading stations. A junior service will be furnished by "Uncle Bert," a garden expert, who will entertain boys and girls with nature study information.

Another contemplated feature is a "House Keeper's Half Hour."

Mr. and Mrs. David Gardner and little baby have left for their home in Rock Falls, after a brief visit at the Jesse Gardner home and recovering from illnesses at the hospital.

How the Goodyear-Zeppelin-1 will outrank the greatest modern giant of the air, the Los Angeles, is shown in the artist's drawing. At the right is a compartment in the proposed dirigible, built on the Pullman plan.

Weapon in War

In times of war the GZ-1 would be a powerful weapon. Used as a mother-ship, it could carry 20 attack planes. It could cross coastlines and frontiers, carrying its own protecting planes or could fly out into the sea with bombers, release them against a hostile fleet and stand out of range as a supply base.

Three men in Akron are bringing this dream to a reality. They are P. W. Litchfield, vice president of the Goodyear Tire Co., and manager of the Goodyear-Zeppelin corporation; Dr. Karl Arnstein, designer of the Los Angeles and sixty other Zeppelins; and Capt. Ernest A. Lehmann, who before the war made 1000 flights in commercial Zeppelins.

The war and the dirigible made Dr. Arnstein and Capt. Lehmann famous. Their inventive genius and daring were back of those German raids that struck fear into the hearts of the allies. But the armistice made them jobless. Now they are Akron residents, working for American interests.

Strawberry Plants and Grass Grow in Alaska This Winter

Seward, Alaska, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Strawberry plants and grass crops are growing in the mild, springlike weather here. At this time last year rotary snow plow crews were fighting snow slides. It was raining today and there was almost no snow on the railroad except in the high mountain passes.

Because of lack of snow for sleds, ice contractors have been unable to fill their orders. As a result the railroad has ordered thousands of ties from Seattle to be shipped to Seward by water.

Says Railway Employees Uphold Despotism Ideals

Washington, Jan. 16.—(AP)—James A. Emery, counsel for the National Manufacturers' Association, was charged today by Donald R. Ritchberg, counsel for the organized railroad employees with "seeking to uphold despotic principles in industry."

Replying to Mr. Emery's discussion yesterday on the P. Watson-Parker railroad labor bill, Mr. Ritchberg told the senate interstate commerce committee that the manufacturers' association counsel had advocated theories of compulsion that were written into laws centuries ago, and "which have been gradually written out of the law after centuries of failure."

Jardine is Opposed to Stopping Future Trades

Washington, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Secretary Jardine advised the senate agriculture committee today that he was opposed to the Caraway bill which would prohibit future trading in cotton and grain because the department is preparing comprehensive recommendations on the subject.

"In the meantime," he said, "the department feels that the hedging function of the future exchanges is of real necessity in the present day development of our markets for cotton and grain, and that it should not be destroyed until other means of accomplishing the same ends are discovered and established."

Railroad Employees Get Back Pay Due Since '23

Silvis—Railway clerks, station employees and freight handlers of the Silvis shops division today received back pay due them since Oct. 16, 1923.

More than 600 in the tri-cities are affected by the increase which was granted by the railway labor board more than two years ago, but which has not been paid because of the necessity of making adjustments.

TO KILL FATTED CALF FOR SEC. JARDINE SOON

Will be Fed Choicest Steaks During His Chicago Visit

Champaign-Urbana, Jan. 16.—(AP)—America's fattest calf will be slaughtered for the special occasion when Secretary of Agriculture Jardine comes to Illinois to address the annual meeting of the Illinois Agricultural Association to be held at the University of Illinois, Champaign-Urbana January 21 and 22.

Sirloin steaks that would sell for $1.60 a pound on the retail butcher market will be served. Laddie Fairfax the best senior steer calf in the United States and which sold on the hoof for 30 cents a pound, has been selected to furnish the meat. These extra choice steaks will be served at the luncheons at which Secretary Jardine and former Governor Lowden will speak at the associations banquet when Governor Small and Judge Davis, acting secretary of the United States Department of Commerce will address the farm delegates and members.

Laddie Fairfax was a twin steer raised by the state experiment station at the University of Illinois and at the International Livestock Exposition at Chicago, the calf was judged the 1,000 pound reserve champion steer. It was purchased by Sears-Roebuck Agricultural foundation which gave the calf back to the university to be slaughtered under experimental tests.

Corn sugar will also be served at the luncheons and banquet.

January Thaw is Injuring Skating on the No. Side Rink

The hundreds of skaters who have been enjoying the north side athletic park field may be stopped if the mercury continues to rise. An order governing the outdoor rink excludes skaters from using the park when the thermometer reaches 30 degrees above zero. With this temperature, skating on the park injures the surface, making it quite difficult to be built up again with the arrival of cold weather.

LICENSED TO WED

The following marriage license has been issued by County Clerk Fred G. Dimmick: Arthur W. Werner of Milwaukee, Wis., and Miss Dale Anderson of Rockford; Dale Nelson and Miss Myrtle B. Winebrenner, both of Grand Detour; Ogle county; Robert Boyd and Miss Irene Baggett both of Dixon; John J. Hagg and Miss Josephine Berry, both of Ambloy.

WEATHER

THE LAZY MAN WAITS TILL HIS SHOES WEAR OUT, TO GET ON HIS FEET.

SATURDAY, JAN. 16, 1926

Illinois: Increasing cloudiness probably followed by rain or snow in north and rain in south portions tonight or Sunday; warmer in south portion tonight.

Chicago and vicinity: Increasing cloudiness tonight; probably followed by rain or snow Sunday; not much change in temperature; lowest tonight somewhat above freezing; fresh winds mostly southwest.

Wisconsin: Increasing cloudiness followed by snow tonight or Sunday; somewhat colder Sunday and in north west portion tonight.

Iowa: Unsettled tonight and Sunday; possibly rain or snow in east and south portions; not much change in temperature.

FORECAST FOR NEXT WEEK

Washington, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Weather outlook for the week beginning Monday:

Region of the Great Lakes, Upper Mississippi and Lower Missouri Valleys: Period of snows toward middle and again toward the end. Temperatures will be cold for the week as a whole.

Methodist Men Debate Issues of World Court

A feature of the meeting of the Mens Club of the Methodist church Monday evening will be a debate on the question, "Resolved, that the United States Should Adhere to the World Court." The debate will follow the weekly supper of the club at 6:30 o'clock, and all men who are interested in the subject are invited to hear it.

Rockford Ski Jumper is Favorite in Cary Meeting

Rockford—Jorgen Jorgensen, Rockford, who won the class B competition at Grand Beach, Mich., last Sunday is rated the favorite in this class at the ski meet at Cary, Ill., tomorrow.

CITY OF DIXON TO TAKE UP 32 BONDS WHICH AREN'T DUE

Remarkably Fine Financial Condition of City Indicated

The City of Dixon takes another step forward in its financial progress Feb. 10, when City Treasurer Eleanor Powell will retire thirty-two bonds, none of which is yet due, thus reducing the city's remarkably small bonded debt by $18,000; and at the same time it is announced at the Treasurer's office that in April and July the last of the City Building Bonds will be retired.

Notice that on Feb. 10 the thirty-two bonds would be paid, the interest automatically stopping at that time, brought an inquiry from a Telegraph representative as to the city's bonded debt, and the information which was forthcoming stamps Dixon as having a smaller bonded debt than probably any city of its size in the state.

With the retirement of these bonds the total bonded debt of the city is less than $30,000, and leaves the municipality in remarkably good condition to undertake any extensive public improvement desired.

Bonds Are Popular

Dixon's bonds are in demand by investors from many states, and there is hardly a week that passes that the city officials do not get some request for local improvement bonds.

The bonds to be retired Feb. 10 are as follows:

Western National Stock Show in Denver

Denver, Colo., Jan. 16.—(AP)—The Western National Stock Show opened today.

Especially notable is the list of entries in the horse show which has attracted such equine fanciers as Mrs. Loula Long Combs of Lees Summit, Mo.; Col E. A. Stewart of Seattle, and Miss Jean Cullaghan of

TODAY'S MARKET REPORTS

Weekly Grain Review

Chicago, Jan. 16.—(AP)—With the Southern hemisphere at the batting plate this week in the wheat market prices have gone lower. Australia and Argentina both developed factors which led to increased pressure to sell and thus weakened values of wheat and of grain as well. Compared with a week ago, wheat this morning showed 1.50 to 2.40 decline, corn a setback of 31.2 c to 51.80 and oats 1.4 c to 3.5 c to 5.80. The provisions net change varied from 20 c to 45 c advance.

An increase of 15,000,000 bushels in the official estimate of the wheat yield this season in Australia came as the week drew to an end and was emphasized by news of big export shipments from Australia going on. In view of the fact that all U. S. markets were well above a world parity and near to an import basis for wheat from Canada, efforts here to advance prices were made under a disadvantage and were without lasting effect.

Frequent transient upticks in wheat prices however, were witnessed despite assertions that domestic stocks of wheat both in and out of the visible supply are larger than has been generally believed and will total at present 25,000,000 bushels.

Depression of corn and oats had its source more or less in the fact that for the first time this season, the corn yieldable supply is larger than at the corresponding time last year.

Seemingly likelihood of a continued shortage of hogs until next fall was largely responsible for advances in the provision market.

Butter Market

Chicago, Jan. 16.—(AP)—The butter market for the week opened with a somewhat improved tone on all markets, but this however, was short-lived as buyers continued to follow the policy of the past few weeks buying only for immediate needs and speculatively interest was conspicuous because of its absence.

Receivers put forth considerable effort to keep floors clear and at times found this a rather difficult task, especially insofar as the finer grades were concerned. This combination of free selling on the part of the receivers and ultra conservative buying by the users, caused a nervous and unsettled undertone to prevail throughout most of the week under review.

One interesting and unusual feature of the market was the very narrow range between the different scores brought about by sharp declines on the top scores. The price range in some cases became so narrow that 1-4 difference between consecutive scores was not uncommon.

It hardly seems possible that this condition can exist for any length of time as sooner or later buyers will realize that the top scores are by far the cheaper and turn to the better grades. This will either result in a decline of the lower scores or an advance of the better grades until a wider range exists.

Chicago Produce

Chicago, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Potatoes: 117 cars; U. S. shipments 708; 17 Canadian; week Wisconsin sacked round whites 3.55@4.10; Minnesota sacked round whites 3.75@4.00; Idaho sacked russets 4.25@4.45.

Pleasant Meeting of W. C. T. U. Friday

(W. C. T. U. Correspondent.)

The monthly meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held Friday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. Emma Geisler.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. W. D. Hartzell, vice president, presided during the business session.

The meeting opened with the singing of America, prayer by Mrs. Mary Thomson and the flag salute. A letter from the State Superintendent of the Department of Soldiers and Sailors, containing plans of work for the year, was read.

Plants were ordered sent to two shut-in members, and other items of interest transacted.

The program was in charge of Mrs. Geisler, Superintendent of the Department of Christian Citizenship, with Miss Callie Morgan assisting. The devotional period was led by Miss Clara Rowe.

Rev. W. W. Marshall, pastor of the Baptist church, gave a very inspiring address on the subject, "How Can We Aid Him in the Enforcement of the 18th Amendment." There are a few of the speaker's thoughts:

Work is just as much needed in keeping the 18th amendment as it was in getting it. I believe in drastic measures in law enforcement. With prohibition the United States ought to have emptied her cellars. Education is half the battle. Before America went dry we were teaching our children in the public schools and Sunday school; the evil effects of strong drink

CROSSING THE BAR—

Sunset and evening star,

And one clear call for me.

And may there be no meaning of the bar,

When I put out to sea.

But such a tide as moving seems asleep,

Too full for sound and foam,

When that which drew from out the boundless deep

Turns again home.

Twilight and evening bell,

And after that the dark.

And may there be no sadness of farewell

When I embark.

For though from out our bourne of Time and Place

The flood may bear me far,

I hope to see my Pilot face to face

When I have crossed the bar.

—Tennyson.

BY CYNTHIA GREY—

It was on Janet's wedding day that she said to me—

"I'm not going to let Tom mean too much to me!"

It was a rather strange remark for a bride, a much-in-love bride, to make.

Just a few moments before, Janet, starry-eyed beneath the soft white lace of her wedding veil, had leaned over the flower-garlanded stairway and tossed her white orchid bouquet into the arms of her bridesmaids.

We had watched Janet go upstairs to slip from her bridal satin into her going-away suit. We had watched Tom's eyes follow her—eyes tender and a bit bewildered to think that at last Janet was really his!

And yet, while taking off the "something old and something new, something borrowed and something blue," a bride of but a few moments was announcing that her bridal platform was to be not a complete surrender of self, but a withholding!

What heresy against all the ailes of lovers since time immemorial!

"And so she was married," the tales always ended, and the reader was supposed to sigh with relief as though all her earthly woes and cares were due.

A Sealed Vault.

Old-fashioned marriage, according to the old-fashioned story writers, meant the entrance of the bride into a hermetically sealed vault, shut as surely from the golden sunlight of vital life as was ever Christian martyr in the catacombs!

THE GRADE-CROSSING MOLOCH.

Automobiles are being blamed for railway crossing accidents—collisions between autos and trains. It is seldom that one of these collisions takes less than two to six lives. But S. T. Bledsoe, general counsel for the Santa Fe railroad, has studied the matter closely and he has decided it is not automobile that is at fault but the careless driver.

The railroads are spending a lot of money to do away with grade crossings. Mr. Bledsoe reports that $75,000,000 was spent in a single year. But while numerous grade crossings are being eliminated, unfortunately other such crossings are being installed even more rapidly. One thousand grade crossings were eliminated in 1923, but that same year 2500 new ones were installed. This was done by public authority. In fact the public has this matter thoroughly in hand now, so that a grade crossing can not be installed except by permission of some public body. Railroads are still under the impression that they save money by having a grade crossing instead of an elevated track or a depressed public highway. This impression is being jarred more and more every year, as more and more people are being killed at these crossings, and the railroads generally have damages to pay, even when the blame for the tragedy really rested with the driver of the automobile.

It is estimated that to eliminate all the grade crossings in the country would cost more money than it cost originally to build the railroad lines. So that this is a work that can not reasonably be asked of the roads. They are having trouble enough as things are. Nevertheless these crossings ought to be eliminated gradually, the worst and most dangerous ones first. Drivers have been cautioned for years regarding these crossing dangers. But the result attained has not been sufficient. The crossing death rate is said to have been reduced by a reasonable percent, that is, based on the number of automobiles in use a few years ago, compared with the number in use now. But the number of automobiles has increased rapidly in the last few years, and is increasing now. So that the grade crossing is taking a greater toll of lives year by year. A human life is supposed to be worth several thousand dollar. It is of worth to the possessor of the life, to his family and to the public generally. Why may not states and counties, or even the federal government, go say 50-50 with a railroad when a dangerous crossing is to be eliminated?

SPENDING AND SAVING.

Salesmanship is the new gospel, and America is its prophet. Selling things seems sometimes the end and aim of our existence. And since for every sale there must be a buyer, there are people who fear that there is too much buying—that people part too easily with their money—that they spend too much.

There is something in this fear so far as most of us are concerned. But statistics do not support this fear. It is shown that in the United States as a whole, and in nearly every American community, with all the expenditure, Americans are putting more money into the savings banks and taking out more life insurance. While the right hand spends, the left hand saves. Each hand knows what the other is doing.

The improvement of late years is undeniable. It is thrift, not stinginess. Everywhere there are families banking money, taking out insurance policies, acquiring land and building homes. The country is getting ahead none the less surely because it is enjoying life at the same time. Buying flivvers and automobiles keeps money changing hands as it has changed before.

FEES.

Are doctors' fees to become standardized? In the District of Columbia the medical society works out a scale of maximum fees for nearly every ailment under the sun. Cutting out an appendix may cost $100 to $500, a wide range.

Basing medical charges on ability to pay, rather than on services rendered, sometimes comes in for criticism and debate. Applied to services and commodities in general, it would keep wealth more fairly distributed. A loaf of bread worth 10 cents to a ditch-digger is worth hundreds of dollars to the rich, theoretically.

WIVES.

Forty-two women, all claiming to be wives of the same man, cause excitement in a Vienna court. Testimony indicates that he married for money, averaged $80 from each bride, then skipped. As nearly as we recall, he holds the world's record for this generation.

A good many Americans, next month when they are making out income tax returns, will be wondering if this Austrian's real motive the lure of being able to claim 42 exemptions.

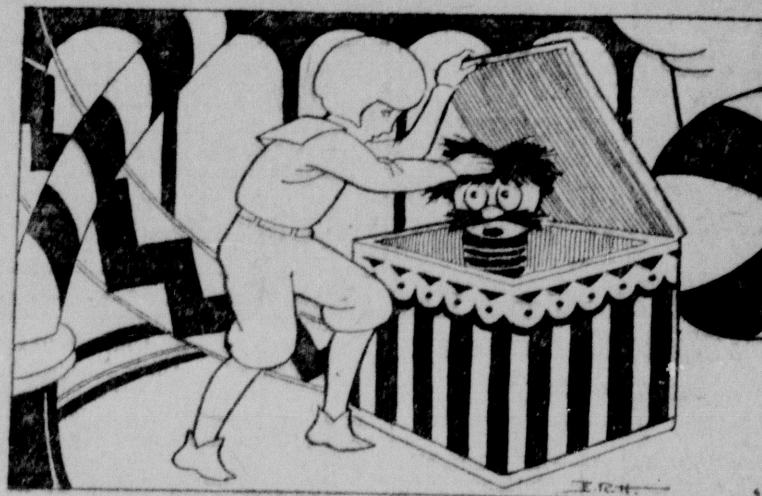

Take a girl in knee dresses and silk stockings. She may be chilly, but she's considered a warm sister.

And, take one in one of these evening gowns. Her shoulders may be bare, but but she doesn't give everyone a cold shoulder.

Hardest thing about getting married is learning to play bridge.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS
by Olive Roberts Barton

THE HIDE GO PEOPLE HAVE THEIR SAY.

Nick walked over and put Jack-in-the-Box in his place.

Things in Hidy Go Land were getting worse instead of better. Indeed, it looked so much like trouble that Nancy said to Nick and Nick quite agreed, that perhaps it would be better for them to leave the Tin Soldier where he was. And that was at the bottom of the water pail.

"You might speak to him. He may listen to reason," begged poor Mister Havalook, putting his spectacles on and taking them off again. "We don't want a revolution."

"Hl, there!" squawked Jack-in-the-Box, "you're spraining my neck, twisting it so much. I'm having a revolution of my own."

"Oh, dear! I'm sorry," said poor, kind Mister Havalook. "I beg your pardon. I'll untwist you again."

But Nick walked over and put Jack-in-the-Box in his place by pushing his head down and hooking the lid.

"These people need a bit of bossing, sir," he said. "You're too kind to them. When they begin to act up the way they are doing, there isn't any use trying to pet them. You must be firm."

"Dear me! Did you hear that?" cried the Grinoline Doll, making a wry face. "As though I hadn't a right to say a word when someone steals my dress right under my very nose!"

"And how about me?" cried Calamity Jane from her corner in the tinkering room where she had been living until her turn came. I had everything to gain and nothing to lose by coming here."

Everybody agreed to that at once, for indeed Calamity Jane had nothing else to lose, but one leg. She had no hair, no eyes, no arms, and one leg only.

"And me," said Sailor Sam. "I came to get my legs changed, and here I stay until I do. Someone said I had sea-legs and whatever they are I won't have them."

"And me!" cried Mrs. Jiggs, waving a cooking spoon.

At this Miss Grinoline fainted.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN

O WHAT!
O what will become of America's fame,
If Uncle Sam loses his quaint old name.
When the nations of earth shall rise
In their might
And put old baldy, the eagle to flight.
O what! O what! O what!

O what will become of the proud financier,
The robbers and murderers of a bloody career,
The grafters and gangsters and political thugs,
Embalmed with the juice from moonshine jugs?
O what! O what! O what!

O what of the homes and land of the free,
When the grand old flag of past victory,
Shall fall like a martyr with the cannon's hot breath,
Beheading hell and destruction o'er the valleys of death.
O what! O what! O what!

O what of the blood of our kinsmen who fell,
In defense of the flag and our country as well,
On the fields of New England in seventy-six
That liberty and tyranny never should mix.
O what! O what! O what!

O what was the price our brothers have paid
When a new foundation for peace was laid,
On Gettysburg, Richmond and Appomattox field,
And in other fierce battles our country to shield.
O what! O what! O what!

O what of the blood stained fields in France,
Where the battle lines moved in a wide expanse,
Where the grand old flag, when others had failed,
Swept back the fierce hordes where a martyr's trail?
O what! O what! O what!

O what, in the annals of liberty's light,
So sacred as blood that is shed for the right,
When the conflict is raging on hill-side and plain
With shot and shells falling like torrents of rain?
O what! O what! O what!

O what of our country so enshrouded in crime,
That the pure air of heaven escapes not the slime,
And what will the judgment of high heaven be,
When crime universal from prison is free?
O what! O what! O what!

O what are the chances for those who are just,
To escape the vile demons of lucre and lust,
And what of the women who exultantly smile
Upon men who are vicious, and those that are vile?
O what! O what! O what!

O why do men falter in making just laws,
And why not enforce what they have, in just cause,
And why will a man in court shield by his text
A cold blooded murderer caught in the act?
O why! O why! O why!

O why did proud nations of earth take a fall,
Great empires, kingdoms, monarchies, all,
In crime and corruption have faded away,
To escape the vile demons of lucre and lust,
O why! O why! O why!

Because of pollution that lead them astray.
Then why should our country, the best ever known,
Reap a red harvest that for years have been sown.
Why not learn a lesson from those that have fell,
And protect this fair land from the demons of Hell?
O why? O why? O why?

Is this your BIRTHDAY

SATURDAY, JAN. 16

If so, the astrological readings say you are kind, thoughtful, and possessed of ability to read character. You naturally will be kind to others and thus will find much happiness in life.

SUNDAY, JAN. 17
If so, you will start life with great ambitions. You desire success, money and the best comforts of life.

But take care that, in your ambitions, you do not pass the things which will award you with happiness. You must control your inclination to be severe in your judgment of others.

You are possessed of both business and artistic talents.

"RED" AND FORMER COACH EFFECT RECONCILIATION FRI.

Shake Hands and "Zup" Wishes Star All Kinds of Success

Los Angeles, Calif., Jan. 16—(AP)—A reconciliation between Harold "Red" Grange and his former coach, Robert Zuppke, was effected here last night at a banquet in honor of Zuppke by University of Illinois alumni.

Over the protest of his manager C. C. Pyle, Grange walked out of a business conference to shake hands with Zuppke.

Entering the banquet room, Grange walked up to his former coach and greeted him.

"Hello Red," Zuppke said, shaking hands.

Zuppke wished his former protegee all success in his professional football career and in his game here today. Upon his saying that he intended to see the game, Grange offered him a seat on the players' bench, but Zuppke refused, saying that he had sat there long enough.

After Grange had left, Zuppke said he had been misquoted and his stand on professional football misinterpreted. He said that he was in favor of professional football on the same basis as professional baseball, golf and other sports, but that he wanted the game to keep its hands off undergraduate players.

All was set today for the clash between Grange's Chicago Bears and the Los Angeles Tigers, the local professional eleven. According to promoters the advance sales has reached $2,000. The game is to be held in the Los Angeles Coliseum, which has a capacity of 50,000.

Grange and Zuppke were reported estranged when Grange, at a banquet given in honor of the University of Illinois football squad at the close of the season, walked out while Zuppke was making a speech which was interpreted as a criticism of the star turning professional.

SPORT BRIEFS

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ski jumpers from all sections of the northwest entered in the twentieth annual tournament of the Norge Ski Club of Chicago at Carle, Illinois to-morrow. Among the hundred listed contestants are one from the University of Illinois, others from Ishpeming and Grand Beach, Mich., Wesley and Milwaukee, Wis., and Canton, S. D. A five mile cross country race for women will open the program.

Now it's ice baseball. Chicago's first adaptation of the national pastime to a frozen diamond and skate shod players comes tomorrow in a game between the Northwest A. A. and All-Star Bankers teams. Plans are being made to organize a league.

Nearly half a thousand high school students of Chicago and vicinity compete today in the annual interscholastic track meet sponsored by the University of Chicago.

For the first time in the 55 years during which he has played thousands of rounds of golf, Harry Vardon capitulated to the weather in the Herth County Alliance play at Radlett, Eng. Of the 32 pairs starting only ten held out at the 18th where snow lay to a depth of two inches.

Purchase by the Cincinnati Nationals of Wally Pipp, first baseman of the Yankees, indicated to baseball men here today that the Reds had decided to keep their hard hitting outfielder, Eddie Roush and their Cuban pitcher, Luque for at least another season.

Twenty golfers were within striking distance of the Texas open golf championship and the $1,500 first prize today as the final 35 hole play started on the Brackenridge Park Municipal Links, MacDonnell Smith, New York, led the field with 138. He scored two 69's on the par 71 course.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

New York—Jack Delaney, Bridgeport, defeated Young Bob Fitzsimmons, Nutley, N. J., ten rounds; Frank Moody of Wales beat Benny Ross, Buffalo, N. Y. ten rounds; Joe Dundee, Baltimore, outpointed Jack McVey, New York negro ten rounds.

Detroit—Bobby Eber, Hamilton, Ont., Canadian bantamweight champion, defeated Joe Lucas, Detroit, ten rounds.

St. Paul—Dave Shade, California, outpointed Jack Malone, St. Paul, ten rounds; Clyde Hull, Faith, S. D., outpointed Sammy Leonard, Minneapolis, eight rounds.

East Chicago—Bobby Barrett, Philadelphia, won a technical knockout over Frankie Welsh, Chicago, five rounds; Jim Savage, Chicago, beat K. O. Ketchell, Philadelphia; Shuffie Callahan, Gary, Ind., knocked out Teddy Martin, Denver.

JOHNSON HERO OF DIXON WIN FROM MORRISON

Pulled Game From the Fire in Last 30 Seconds of Play Fri.

"Bill" Johnson was again the hero in athletics of the Dixon high school last evening when in the last 30 seconds of play, he wrung victory from the hands of the Morrison high school basketball five in the Whiteside county seat. The score was 14 to 13 in Dixon's favor. The teams were very evenly matched, only one or two points difference dividing the score at any time. The guarding of the Dixon team was the outstanding feature of the evening.

This evening the Dixon team will entertain the Mt. Morris high school in a session in the "rattle" at the south side building. Mt. Morris has a strong basketball team and will furnish plenty of action for Dixon this evening. A curtain raiser will be staged between the Lee Center high school and the second string players of the local school.

TRIANGLES TOOK FIRST GAME BY 25 TO 18 SCORE

Dixon's Newest Basketball Team Shows it Has Real Class

The fastest, cleanest basketball game ever played on a Dixon court was played Friday at the Y. M. C. A. when the new Dixon Triangles defeated the crack Elgin team. Only one foul was called during the game. This was an unintentional foul, committed by Agnew of the visiting team.

The Elgin team found the Dixon defense baffling. Vaughan was always in their way at center. Kerz and Mosher blocked play after play that would have led them several points. Turning from defense to offense, the Dixon team moved down the floor with such speed and accuracy of passing that Elgin could only attempt to half. The clever work of "Doc" Segner, star forward, working with Shepherd through three quarters, was one of the spectacular aspects of the game. When Wickey replaced "Shep" at forward, the combination gave some remarkable exhibition of passing and floor work.

Segner accounted for thirteen of the Triangles' 25 points, Vaughn made eight and Shepherd four. Stearns of the Elgin team seemed lost on the floor and many of his clever shots went wild. He was able to account for eight of his team's total points of eighteen.

Wayne Wolfe officiated and handled the game in fine shape. From the first whistle to the final announcement of the total score, his decisions were heard distinctly and definitely accepted by both the players and the audience.

The Triangles will go to Elgin next Wednesday evening. The next game at home will be announced next week.

TWO OF THREE UNBEATEN BIG TEN IN ACTION

Hardest Battle Expected Between Wis. and Chicago

Chicago, Jan. 16—(AP)—Two of the three undefeated Western Conference basketball teams go into action tonight to maintain their records, with Michigan, rated as one of the strongest five in the pennant campaign, and Minnesota, one of the weakest, on vacation.

Illinois, which displayed no great form in downing Minnesota, engages Ohio State at Columbus and Wisconsin is host to Chicago. The Badgers look for a test of their defense in the Maroon tilt.

Indiana, which lost to Wisconsin Monday after manhandling the Gophers the previous Saturday, meets a test in Iowa. The Hoosiers are favored to win unless the Hawkeyes have improved the showing made in winning over Chicago and losing to Michigan.

A hard tussle is looked for in the Northwestern trip to Purdue. The Purple showed strength in holding Michigan to a small win and the Boilermakers upset Ohio State. Michigan returns to the fray on Monday as host to Illinois, but Minnesota is not called for a conference game until Jan. 27.

NO NEW PLAYERS WITH CLEVELAND TO START RACE

Speaker Sticks to His Veteran Team for the Coming Season

Cleveland, Jan. 16—(AP)—The same squad which finished the American League season of 1925 in Cleveland uniforms will carry them through the pennant fight of 1926, resident E. S. Bernard said today.

No new men have been acquired since the curtain fell last October with the Indians in sixth place, but Manager Speaker thinks his club has got considerable bad ball out of its system in the last two years and should hurdle two or three or four positions this year.

Of the thirty men ordered to report to spring training camp at Lakeland, Fla., March 1, the Cleveland pitchers are going to get the most attention and of these the veterans George Uhle and Joe Shaute will be the objects of greatest concern. The club recalled four recruits late last season, but Speaker is most concerned about these two experienced slabs who were ineffective last year.

The third base position, with which Speaker has done considerable experiment since Larry Gardner retired in 1922, seems at last to be well protected. This plan great hopes on Johnny Hodapp, purchased last year from Indianapolis. At short Joe Sewell went after more chances than any other American League shortstop.

The release of "Chick" Fawcett indicates that Speaker is satisfied with Fred Spurgeon at second and George Burris will be back on first.

The regular outfield trio, Jamieson, Speaker and McNulty or Lee, will be unchanged, although Speaker hopes for a return to batting form by Jamieson who fell off a bit last year. With more help from Jamieson Speaker believes the trio of Burns, Sewell and Speaker can present a formidable wrecking crew.

The batterymen will report at Hot Springs, Feb. 14 to start workouts with Glenn Myatt and Luke Sewell doing the catching.

President of National Ass'n. to Live in Tampa

Tampa, Fla., Jan. 16—(AP)—M. H. Sexton, president of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues has sold his holdings in Rock Island, Illinois, and will make Tampa his home. It was announced here today. Mr. Sexton is expected here within ten days, according to his son, M. H. Sexton, Jr., who has been here for several days. Mr. Sexton has been president of the Minor League organization since its inception 24 years ago and was re-elected this week in Los Angeles.

Veterans Have Half Year to Renew Govt. Insurance Suspended

New York, Jan. 16—(AP)—Only six months remain for four million service men to renew $30,000,000,000 worth of government insurance which they have dropped since the war, the chief co-ordinator of the U. S. Veterans Bureau for this area announced. Dependents of the service men in the next 50 years may lose more than $30,000,000,000 unless the service men show more interest in the insurance, a statement said.

In New York State alone, 223,999 men have dropped $3,669,999,000 worth of insurance.

Cooperation Between Railroads and Highways Seen

Chicago—Cooperation instead of competition between railroads and highways is expected to follow the American Road Builders Association convention closing today, says William L. Connell, association president.

"The Wife Who Wasn't Wanted" with Irene Rich, is a picturization of this story by Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

SYNOPSIS

John Mannering, candidate for re-election as District Attorney, has declared his intention to prosecute his own son, Bob, for manslaughter, the boy having been in a car which crashed into another, killing a woman. The wife and mother, Eileen, is incensed at her husband. She loves and admires him, but her affection for the boy is even stronger. Jerome Wallace, a former suitor, is a candidate against Mannering and he tells Eileen if he is elected he can help Bob.

Wallace had promised to procure Bob's freedom if he were elected, and John would continue to be as adamant if he won, but crushed, his spirit broken, if he lost. It was only with an effort that Eileen restrained herself from fairly groaning aloud as the problem lay plain before her. Was ever wife and mother torn from a happy and sheltered life to face a more grievous dilemma?

Then suddenly her face filled with relief. There was still a way from her point of view. An easy way could John's stubbornness be overcome and he brought to a reasonable view of the duties and true responsibilities of parenthood. She had once been repulsed, but why repine? Had not persistence turned defeat into victory for many another woman when hope seemed dead.

She shifted her position in the car. It was the slightest sort of movement, but with the change the reverse she had exhibited towards her husband that morning, seemed to fade and a subtle warmth to creep into her manner towards him.

It was not lost upon John. Hardly had she moved before he smiled at her. It was a propitiatory smile, bringing an eagerness to his tired, haggard face which was almost pathetic.

"You must be dreadfully tired, dear," he said gently. "You never slept a wink last night."

"No, nor did you either, John," she agreed sympathetically.

He reached down and procured a cushion.

"Let me put this behind your back, Eileen. It will make you more comfortable."

She allowed him to adjust it and sank back upon it with a pleased sigh.

"That is better, thank you, John." Then, after a moment's hesitation, "I could almost say I am perfectly comfortable were it not for Bob."

His face brightened as they talked, but now it clouded.

"I know, dear—it is hard—awfully hard for you to bear."

"But think of Bob, John!" she cried, with a feeling which she was at pains to suppress.

"How can I be happy with him in such a place, amongst such surroundings?"

There was tenderness and anxiety in his face as he regarded her with never a word.

"He's so pale, John. You must have noticed that," she went on. "It's no wonder shut up in that horrible place."

"It is a hard experience for the boy," he agreed, with a sigh.

"Hard? It's positively fearful, John," she shivered. "What can he do with himself but sit there and think and think? To remain there day after day amidst such depressing surroundings is bound to have a bad effect upon him. It cannot help but leave its mark upon him in some way, and John, might it not—is there not real danger that it will affect his mind?"

"No," he said, with the assurance born of exact knowledge. "Thousands of men pass years—for that matter, many are confined for life—without the slightest deterioration of their mental faculties."

"But Bob is different," she persisted, promptly shifting her ground. "He has been carefully reared; he is used to all the luxuries of life. Think of the hardship it must be to him to adjust himself to the conditions in such a place!"

Although she eyed him questioningly, his only answer was a grave nod.

"I am sure the food served is detestable."

"It is plain fare, but thoroughly wholesome, Eileen, you can rest assured of that."

"But are you sure that it agrees with him, John? Remember, dear, I've always had to be extremely watchful of his diet."

He stared ahead with anxious and unseeing eyes as if lost in thought.

"Perhaps he is thinner," he mused, as if talking to himself, and then to her. "Did you think he was thinner; did he seem thinner to you, Eileen?"

Impulsively she reached forth to touch his hand, her eyes alight with hope.

"John, you do care—you do care deeply, don't you?"

"How can you doubt it, Eileen?" he groaned, giving way to his feelings before her kindness. "God knows it sometimes feels to me as if it must break my heart."

"Not your heart, dear, not your heart, if you play fair with Bob—with me."

He gazed at her, anguish plain in his face, as if he wished to be certain of her meaning.

"Play fair with Bob, with you, Eileen?"

"I mean exactly that," she said, her soul in her eyes. "When are you going to use your ability, your professional skill—yes, your office—every bit of influence you can bring to bear, anything, to get your son out of that awful jail?"

He gazed down at her, a great tenderness plain amidst his feeling.

"Poor little sweetheart, that great big mother's heart of yours makes you forget. You would be the last to ask me to make use of my official influence to—"

"Don't mistake me, John. Why mince matters. I'd have you use anything and honor you for doing anything to help Bob. How much longer are you going to keep this sort of thing up?"

He took a deep breath and when he spoke it was quietly, but with intense resolution.

"Just so long as I am District Attorney, just so long as I am in office, Eileen, I must do my duty as I see it." Then, as if to temper his attitude, he stretched forth his hand to touch hers. "Can't you understand, darling? Surely you must realize my position?" he pleaded.

But without a word in response she drew back in her corner of the car and, withdrawing her hand, allowed him to fall unheeded upon the cushion. Again she had tried to bring her husband to her way of thinking without success. Never a thought for herself had she had, only for Bob, their son. Yet John, her husband, had refused her. With bitterness there came a remembrance of Wallace's words:

"Who could help you more than your husband?" Apparently, anybody. At least he, a man to whom she had hardly given a thought in twenty years, was afflicted by no such scruples as those which bound her husband.

If Eileen had been reserved in her attitude towards her husband before, she was cold now. At the door of her home she allowed John to drive away with never a word. Straight for her own room she made, refusing lunch, nor did she appear to greet her husband at dinner. A prey to disappointment, yes; but more and more giving thought to Wallace's pledge of assistance. In the face of her husband's unbending purpose, in despair of being able to help Bob in any other way, Wallace's offer seemed her final hope.

Pushed Bed Too Close to Stove: Neighbors Acted

Hartford—Mrs. August Welker pushed her bed too close to the stove and then went to bed. Next door the church missionary society was in session, smelled smoke and extinguished a fire in the bed and probably saved a row of eight frame houses. Hartford has no fire department.

BARBARA HAWLEY, 25, self-willed and talented, breaks with her fiancé, BRUCE REYNOLDS, and gets a job on the Chicago Telegraph, in order to see life.

One of her duties is to write the daily love-column. She and BOB JEFFRIES, police reporter, enjoy the exchange of several letters with a girl named VIOLETTA. Later Barbara reads of Bruce's marriage to a girl named VIOLETTA CRANBY and learns that she has herself engineered the girl's campaign to win Bruce.

A prominent local man kills himself in a roadhouse where Barbara is attending a dinner for newspaper men and women. In getting the story Barbara finds a red scarf left by the man's unknown woman companion.

Bruce becomes the junior member of Manners, Stone and Reynolds, realtors. LYDIA STACY, rich widow, spurned by Bruce, informs ANDREW McDERMOTT, managing editor of the Telegraph, of crookedness in Bruce's firm. Manners leaves town with the company's money. Bruce thinks Barbara is responsible for the Telegraph's accounts of the affair.

Barbara's mother dies suddenly. She leases an apartment in town and agrees to have Fanny, McDermott's daughter, come to live with her. The girl arrives in town two weeks ahead of schedule.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXIII

THE girl smiled winningly and took a step nearer. Barbara recovered from her astonishment enough to meet the proffered hand.

"How do you do, Miss McDermott?" she said. "I'm glad to see you."

Fanny picked up her traveling bag and almost danced into the room. "My, it's nice to be here, Miss Hawley," she exclaimed. "I've been caged in that hole of a school so long that living here with you is going to be like heaven."

"I'm sorry you find the place in such a mess," apologized Barbara. "I only moved here today." "Oh, that doesn't matter. I'll help you fix it up. Shall I?" Barbara looked at the eager face and the childish eyes. "Not tonight," she smiled. "You'd better tumble right into bed." Fanny, skipped through the living room and into the kitchen. "It's perfectly awful of me," she giggled. "But I'm starved. Do you suppose you have a crust of dry bread in the bread box?"

"The bread box has not yet been unpacked," answered Barbara, smiling. "But I guess we can find something in the refrigerator."

"Don't go to any bother," cried the girl. "It's a terribly unkindly thing to do so soon, but it was too late to go to a restaurant, and I'm hungry as a bear."

Barbara foraged in the ice box and brought out crackers and cheese. The pantry provided for the winter preserved the summer before by Barbara's mother.

Fanny sat on the bed in her room, clad in an amazing pajama outfit of Chinese blue. She munches crackers and talked gaily to Barbara between mouthfuls.

"Gee, it's peachy of you to take me in here. You don't know how scared I was that father'd pick some old fright of a grandmother to look out for me. You see, he still has that old-fashioned notion that girls need to be looked out for. Isn't it silly?" She took a prodigious bite of cheese and sat kicking her heels

It seemed to Barbara that she stood by the window for many hours. Once in a while an automobile would round the corner—but they all passed on.

against the chair legs.

Barbara smiled. "I don't know, my dear," she said. "Perhaps they do. But I am too busy to do much interfering with your life. You're busy mostly on your own, you know. I think your father understands that."

Work at the Telegraph office went on as though the world had not turned over for Barbara Hawley. She found herself rushing from assignment to assignment, anything food at odd hours, chatting with Bob and duelling with Miss Edger—altogether unable to give time to grief during office hours.

"It's a trite saying but true," she said to Bob, "that work is the best cure for woe. When I'm slaving away for the Telegraph I haven't a moment to think of my mother. It's a blessing, for thoughts of her would be hard to bear. There was never anybody like her, Bob."

"It's when I put on my hat and go out from this office at night that the worst of it sweeps over me," Barbara continued. "I sometimes turn unconsciously toward the interurban station instead of in the direction of the apartment. This new place will never be home."

Bob took his pipe out of his mouth. "It sounds like rotten sentimentality, Babe, but I won't let home be a place at all? Isn't it a person, or persons?"

Barbara raised her eyes to his. "I suppose it is, Bob. Fanny McDermott is a dear in many ways, but she doesn't make that apartment home for me—though I must say she makes it home for herself. I might as well have a spoiled daughter of my own to wait on as that young miss."

"You ought to have daughters of your own, Babe. You'd make a good mother." Bob was thoughtfully blowing smoke rings. Barbara looked at him, startled.

"Nonsense," she replied. "I'd make a very poor one. I'm too selfish to mother anybody—not selfish with material things, perhaps, but selfish in that it is only my own destiny that matters to me in the least."

The argument was broken off by Jimmy, who advanced upon Barbara with a mass of mail. "Here, Heart's Ease," he said to her. "Lamp your daily down. Get busy. Do your stuff. Praise the girls who won't pet and give the others 'ell."

"Have you had any more letters from Violella?" queried Bob, glancing at the many-colored envelopes.

Barbara turned cold. "Not for a long time," she answered, after a moment. "Guess when she landed her young man and brought him down the aisle beside that red satin wedding dress she thought her struggle was ended for life. Decided she didn't need me any longer."

"They do get self-satisfied after they've made the grade," remarked Bob. "They draw themselves up on the shore of matrimony like spent swimmers and just lie flat on the sands and pant. And then they get too fat and too soft. And presto, they find hubby stepping out with ladies who don't loaf so much."

Barbara was opening the love-love mail. "Why, here she is again, Bob. The envelope is pale lavender this time instead of pink, and I didn't recognize it."

Bob came and looked over her shoulder. "Dear Winnifred," it read, "Here I am again. Yes, I married the young man and we had a swell honeymoon trip to Chicago. And he turned out to be just a plain man after all. They all do."

"Now I want you to tell me what a girl should do when her husband won't let her invite her friends to the house. I have some dandy friends at the place where I used to work. But he has heard something about them and taken it on himself to say I can't have 'em out."

"And he's cut my allowance to almost nothing because his silly old business went and smashed."

"Don't you think I should get back at him by meeting my friends outside? Ain't it fierce that men can put us women under their thumbs so?"

"I know you'll sympathize with me, for you always write so independent."

After the signature was the inevitable postscript. "Do you really think a woman can love as hard a second time as she does the first?"

"Wow!" cried Bob. "Trouble already. The young lady has found that he's just plain man. I'll bet she and the young ribbon clerk are quarreling like the alley cats." He went chuckling away.

Barbara re-read the letter. Then she began an answer to it—tore it up and began another. After five futile efforts, she laid the lavender letter in the wire basket and made ready to go home. Her brows were twisted.

She found the little apartment in chaos. Every light in the place was burning. A long box lay on the davenport, its wet tissue paper hanging over the velour upholstery, where Fanny had left it when she snatched the flowers out of it.

After two hours' steady work she at last sat down to a dinner alone in the kitchen. The chop and the salad she had planned for Fanny remained in the icebox.

When she had eaten she washed the dishes and put them away. Then she lay down on the couch in the living room to read.

Some time later she awoke with a start. The lights were still on and the book slipped to the floor. Her body was stiff with cold. She went into her bedroom and got a large silk shawl to wrap around her shoulders.

Out in the living room, again, she consulted her watch. It was nearly one o'clock. With a start she turned toward Fanny's room. She switched on the lights there and found it empty. Then she ran to the front window and looked out. The street was quiet. A policeman strolled past, swinging his club. There was no one else in sight.

It seemed to Barbara that she stood by the window for many hours. Now and then a belated automobile would round the corner. Barbara held her breath each time, expecting it to draw up in front of the apartment building. But they all passed on.

Once Barbara left the window and ran to pick up the telephone book. She rifled through the leaves hastily and suddenly laid the book down again.

She regained her post by the window. A car was swinging in at the curb, its powerful lights flashing for a moment through the room in which she stood. Barbara was faintly aware that the lines of the car were familiar.

But she had no time to ponder the matter. Assisted by a man, Fanny alighted from the automobile and started up the steps. Half way up the man put his arms around her and kissed her. Then he ran back down the steps and climbed into the car. Barbara pressed her face against the pane, watching him drive off.

Tripping footsteps sounded outside. Barbara turned toward the door just in time to see it open and admit Fanny. She was pale and her eyes burned. One lock of fluffy hair fell from beneath her hat across her face.

Pick of the Talent Announced by Radio Stations Throughout the United States

U. S. NOW BOASTS 536 STATIONS OF VARIOUS POWERS

408 Class in A; 128 in Class B Licensed by Government

Washington—At the beginning of the new year there were 536 broadcasting stations, 408 of which were Class A and 128 Class B.

There are also pending before the Department of Commerce around 250 applications for new broadcasting station licenses and around 100 applications for increased power. The stations in existence are classified by power as follows:

How They Are Divided

Class A—Six stations of 5 watts, 53 stations of 10 watts, nine stations of 15 watts, nine stations of 20 watts, three stations of 30 watts, one station of 25 watts, 79 stations of 50 watts, 122 stations of 100 watts, five stations of 150 watts, four stations of 200 watts, 29 stations of 250 watts, and 88 stations of 500 watts.

Class B—Fifty-six stations of 500 watts, six stations of 750 watts, 36 stations of 1,000 watts, eight stations of 1,500 watts, two stations of 2,000 watts, two stations of 2,500 watts, one station of 3,000 watts, two stations of 3,500 watts, one station of 4,000 watts, 13 stations of 5,000 watts and one station of 10,000 watts.

Twelve Discontinued

Twelve broadcasting stations were discontinued during December. Classified according to power, the discontinued stations follow:

500 watts—KDFM, Cleveland, and WLB, Minneapolis.

100 watts—KFUM, Colorado Springs, Colo., and WTAT, Boston.

50 watts—KFJX, Cedar Falls, Ia.; KFMR, Ft. Sill, Okla.; KFJ, Breckinridge, Minn.; KWUC, Lemars, Ia.; WHEB, De Pere, Wis., and WPDQ, Buffalo.

10 watts—KFUP, Brownsville, Tex., and WOCG, Sycamore, Ill.

An additional group of call letters has been assigned WDFW, at Cranston, R. I., by the Department of Commerce. The additional call letters are WLSI, which will be used when the station is operated by the Lincoln Studios at Providence.

New Alaskan Station

A new Alaskan station has been licensed experimentally by the Department of Commerce. It follows: KQCD—Chovin Supply Company Anchorage, Alaska, 224 meters, 100 watts.

Dr. Cummings' Health Column

BY DR. HUGH S. CUMMING
Surgeon General, U. S. Public Health Service

"A chronic 'cold in the head,' so-called is a condition that has continued with or without an intermission of symptoms for some months or years. Such a cold is usually spoken of as 'catarrh,' and the word 'catarrh' is very much abused. Before the days of the Pure Food and Drug legislation, it was not uncommon to find ten, twelve or even twenty deceptive advertisements in our newspapers of cures for catarrh.

The unscrupulous manufacturers of such preparations preyed upon the credulity of the public with exaggerated statements not only concerning the efficiency of their gowns, but also with equal exaggeration concerning the terrors and horrors of this disease.

An inflammation of the mucous membrane of the nose, is some horrible, disgusting, dangerous, and almost incurable disease. As a matter of fact, it is usually nothing of the sort. A catarrhal condition is neither disgusting, terrible, horrible, dangerous, nor is it necessarily incurable.

Catarrh may be defined as an inflammation of a mucous membrane with a free discharge. Any inflammation of any mucous membrane of the body may be accompanied by a discharge, and such inflammations so accompanied are, therefore, catarrhal inflammations. Appendicitis may be a form. The common head cold also is just as much catarrh as is the type of the nasal inflammation that becomes chronic.

Sinus Trouble

The longer any inflammation exists the more that inflammation tends to spread. In few chronic cases is the inflammation limited to the mucous membrane of the nose. Usually the disease causes an involvement of the deeper tissues, or spreads as has been indicated.

The secretions formed in sinuses, and other cavities drain into the nose more or less imperfectly, and imperfect drainage tends to keep up the inflammation in these places.

A few cases of chronic nasal catarrh when examined by a specialist show the presence of diseased bone, or of infected or abscessed cavities. It is necessary in most cases, in order to treat properly a case of catarrh, to provide drainage in order to permit the complete removal of the products of inflammation. This is the reason why it is sometimes necessary to remove a part of the dead or diseased bone, or to open up imperfectly drained cavities.

Poultry Trust Under Investigation Dept. of Justice, Man Says

Washington, Jan. 16—(AP)—An investigation of a "poultry trust" under the Sherman anti-trust law is underway by the department of justice, John L. Lott, special assistant to the attorney general disclosed before the senate judiciary committee.

Mr. Lott was testifying in the Alumnus inquiry. He did not say what composes the "poultry trust."

"I don't even know that these fellows know we are after them," he said.

The witness did disclose, however, that the investigation touches several big concerns in the midwest which deal in poultry, butter and eggs. The basis of inquiry is a charge that these companies combine to drive smaller competitors out of business by paying prices which these competitors are unable to meet.
